

Day 8

Bath

Hello everyone,

today was a bank holiday in the UK and we went to a city named Bath where also the Romans used to live. Our trip there took about two and a half hours. We started with a guided city tour by Mr. Adam. We saw Abbey Church, Jane Austen's home, the King's Circus, which is a historic circular square designed by John Wood, the river Avon and other sights. After that we had free time in Bath. We ate wraps and relaxed on a bench. At 2:30 pm we walked to the Roman Baths.

When we were inside, the security checked our bags. We got an audioguide similar to a telephone that explained to us everything about the baths. First we started with a museum about the Roman baths, about how they lived, how it was built and how the rooms were used. The Romans had gyms, changing rooms and more. At the end we saw the big pool outside. After the Roman Baths we had 45 minutes free time and we watched a man who walked on a rope and played violine at the same time. Then we walked to the bus and went home to our host families. The weather was sunny and sometimes cloudy. We had about 16 degrees Celsius. It was a great day full of history, stories and exciting impressions. The city Bath is very elegant and pretty.
